RMT MA/Technical Knowledge Assessment Outline

Course Description

RMT Candidates will be assessed on their ability to present movement analysis of all skiing up to the RMT level. The Assessment will evaluate the candidate's:

- Knowledge of cause-and-effect relationships to prepare certification candidates for assessments and enhance clinic participants' skiing.
- Ability to use their technical expertise to enhance clinic participants' knowledge; make technical, tactical, and/or equipment recommendations; and discuss the sport from various perspectives.

The Technical/Movement Analysis Module focuses on using your technical understanding of skiing to present movement analysis of all skiing up to the RMT level. You will need to prioritize information based on your audience's understanding of skiing and provide movement/technical analysis of skiing using several skill-to-skill relationships. An RMT can distinguish the technical needs of the various certification levels and tailor their presentation and movement analysis to each certification level.

Professionalism and Self-Management

During each assessment module, candidates will be assessed on their professionalism and self-management skills as they participate in the event. While the Learning Outcomes and Assessment Criteria are the same for each module, candidates are required to earn a passing score on them for each module independent of the other modules. The assessment will evaluate candidate's ability to:

- Strengthen the professional environment by adapting to situations and other group members on behalf of themselves and their resort.
